

MEXICAN CONGRESS
KEY TO SITUATION
AS TO THE FUTURE

OFFICIAL WASHINGTON AWAITS
POSSIBLE ACTION OF NEXT
TWENTY-FOUR HOURS.

HUERTA'S LATEST MOVE

Doubles All Taxes and Laughs As He Discusses the Future

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Nov. 20.—The eyes of official Washington were turned today on the Mexican congress and Huerta's message on his recent assumption of dictatorial powers. The possibility that the new congress might act on concessions discredited in advance by the United States was thought in many quarters to be a pivot on which the next move by this government might turn.

Have Confidence.
Those who have been of the opinion that Huerta would retire after his acts had been ratified by the congress, still held confidence in their theory. So far as can be learned the American government means to continue its plan of financial blockade with diplomatic pressure from without.

Shows Signs.
The closing features of Huerta's message in which, after proposing the sanction of congress, he added that if this was withheld the authority entrusted to another, he and his ministers were agreed in advance to accept such a result, was regarded with some significance as indicating that Huerta himself was at least recognizing the possibilities of his own elimination.

No Instructions.
Some officials declared there was no new move in prospect for the immediate future. It was also said that no instructions of a final character had been sent to General O'Shaughnessy.

Await Hail.
The departure of William Bayard Hale at Nogales, after parleying with the constitutionalists, was also said to be a factor in the delay. It was regarded as possible that officials here would await Mr. Hale's return to gain first hand information for making an other move.

Authorities Reticent.
While the authorities here have been as reticent as were the principals respecting the practical character of the exchanges in the conferences it is known that the chief purpose of Mr. Hale's mission was to ascertain if General Carranza on behalf of the faction opposed to the Huerta government would suggest or agree to the appointment of a group of men to succeed the provisional authorities in the event of Huerta's displacement; these men to be selected from citizens of mature years who have not been actively engaged in the recent upheavals and to be somewhat in the nature of the Japanese "elder statesmen;" they to take temporary charge of the government and order new elections and to reorganize it.

This question is also believed to have been incorporated in the new famous note which went to President Huerta on Nov. 3rd.

It is further reported that Carranza people definitely refused any such arrangement and insisted upon recognition of their president and cabinet.

Doubles Taxes.
Mexico City, Nov. 20.—One of the latest acts of Provisional President Huerta's dictatorship is the assembling of congress placing restriction on his powers, was an edict today making a sweeping increase in the internal taxes of Mexico.

The stamp tax requires a revenue stamp on checks, receipts, contracts and all documents of the republic in nature was doubled. The tax on tobacco, alcohol and crude petroleum was heavily increased.

Subject of Comment.
The marked manner in which Provisional President Huerta showed his cordiality toward Nelson O'Shaughnessy, American charge d'affaires, and the way in which he applauded the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner" at yesterday's reception in Cutaputepet Castle were subjects of much comment today, although the entire diplomatic corps was present. General Huerta did not converse at length with any of the diplomats except Mr. O'Shaughnessy, with whom he spoke privately for a quarter of an hour.

In High Spirits.
The provisional president in high spirits informed Mr. O'Shaughnessy of the substantial nature of the message he was about to deliver to the congress and told him he would send a copy to the American embassy in advance of his delivery.

Not Prevalent.
It was regarded today as not entirely impossible that Provisional President Huerta, after having through the ratification of a new congress received himself from the danger of being ousted by the congress, might be brought to account for his acts, elimination through the efforts of the foreign powers supporting the United States government.

No Opposition.
It was not generally expected today that Provisional President Huerta would encounter much of the obstructionist tactics which characterized the Gen. Huerta. On their meeting letters said it is assumed, would automatically forfeit his self-imposed autocratic powers.

The new congress was expected would delay to ratify in entirety the chief executive's message. That the two-hour delay he asked to do this was plainly indicated in his message to them.

Seeks Ratification.
That he might obtain this ratification is currently reported to have been one of the reasons why Gen. Huerta so obstinately opposed the congress brought to bear on him by the United States and other nations to withdraw. It is said to have been perceived that he must resign and that former minister of the interior, Alvaro Obregón, would succeed him.

Scheme Spoiled.
Up to the moment of the last representation made to him by John Lind, the friends of the provisional president, he frequently equivocated with some degree of equanimity on the idea of turning over the presidency to him.

Asks Protection.

Lecture Engagements.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 20.—Senator La Follette spent twelve hours in Madison yesterday at the home of his brother-in-law, Judge R. G. He concluded a lecture engagement in Indiana and had a day to spare, and he concluded to come here to visit Judge Siebeck, who has been ill at his home for three weeks past.

Political followers were amazed today to learn of the senator's visit. His tour now takes him back toward Washington and he will not be in Madison again until the holidays. The senator appeared to be in his old-time health, and said that he never felt better. He admitted that he was glad to get a chance to appear again on the lecture platform and said that he was greeted with large audiences everywhere.

The senator was at his downtown office less than two hours. Most of his time was spent at the Siebeck home. He had a long talk with his law partner, Alfred D. Rogers, and they slipped out of Madison. Many of his associates here did not see the visit until after he had departed.

A deputy warden this week confiscated two deer killed in Michigan near State Line by E. Kennedy of Goodland, Indiana, who held a Michigan non-resident hunting license. He violated the law in shipping more than one deer (this provision being similar to the Wisconsin statute), and in failing to get a permit from the Michigan department to transport his venison into Wisconsin. Kennedy apparently took the deer in ignorance of the law, as his transcripts and the express company and the authorities were open.

According to evidence introduced by detectives Bertische shared in the profits of the clairvoyants in return for which he guaranteed them against molestation by police.

SCALPERS CUT DOWN
WISCONSIN TICKETS

Six Hundred Tickets Disposed of in
Few Hours at Madison and No
More Are Forthcoming.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Nov. 20.—Six hundred tickets for the Chicago game were received in Madison yesterday and were sold the same day. Four hundred were disposed of prior to that day. No more can be obtained from the Chicago authorities, due to the fact it is rumored that the tickets have been sold. Six hundred more could have been sold here. Those who have tickets reserved yesterday will probably have to go down to Chicago and climb the fence.

Scalpers Are Busy.
It is reported that much scalping is being done at Chicago. As a result of the situation the athletic council will ask for remedial action at the next meeting of conference representatives.

"Because of the two weeks' practice which is about to begin, the players are in the best of condition under the circumstances. Some have minor injuries but none are serious enough to keep any of the regular players out of the game. Tandberg is coming back, and will be playing his regular game again, and Lange, although not entirely recovered from the cut received in practice, will play Saturday. Cummings, Van Gent, Tompkins and Alexander will have first choice of bases. Marlin and Smith as reserves. Davy will be held substitute for Tandberg."

Hard Work for Ends.
The Wisconsin ends will have the hardest game to play that will be required of any of the men. With Ostie and Lange filling those positions, doubt as to the ability of Wisconsin to take the measure of Chicago's case is entirely minimized. These two players have been playing a great game this season. The local fans are not doing much more worrying about the line. With German Schultz's able instruction this week things have assumed a much better aspect. He has inspired more confidence in the team men, which is not detracting from the credit due to Davy, Lange and Driver. German's specialty above all else is line work, and the men are getting the full benefit of his tutoring.

The cross country team left at 3:35 for Columbus, Ohio, to engage in the first of the cross country race in which fourteen schools of the west will be represented. Wisconsin last year's champions, and Ames are doped as Ohio state's closest contender for the honors. Most of the Wisconsin runners who won at Evanston last year are on the team now.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Charlestown, W. Va., Nov. 20.—Indications today were that the trial of E. Graham Wilson, a wealthy farmer charged with assault by Miss Kate Turner, her mother-in-law's guest, would be concluded tomorrow.

Miss Turner told her story yesterday and appeared in court today for cross examination.

Head of the Miss Turner related in tones so low that only the court, the lawyers and the jury could hear her testimony. She said that Wilson, who had been attending a horse show, returned home the morning of Jan. 6th, and after breakfast invited her to accompany him to a remote part of his farm to look over some blooded colts. She said she went to the place, she said, he forced her out of the house, and later went to her home where she took her mother into her confidence. Dr. William Neil later was told and Wilson's arrest followed. Penalty for the crime on conviction is death.

GIVES SMALL BOYS A TOBACCO LECTURE

gives small boys. Judge Maxfield Talks to a Group of Youth Offenders.—Attention Called to New Law.

A number of small boys attending the ward schools were brought before Judge Maxfield in juvenile court this afternoon where they were given a severe lecture on the use of tobacco. The young offenders complained that the youngsters have been accustomed to congregating in alleys, behind board fences and in other places for the purpose of indulging in their newly acquired taste for tobacco. The ones among them who possessed the "makings" were especially popular.

Judge Maxfield called attention to a new law passed by the last legislature which is especially stringent, strictly prohibiting the use of tobacco by boys under sixteen years of age, and also prohibiting the sale of tobacco in any form to such persons. Grocers and tobacco dealers are warned to heed the provisions of the act in peril of prosecution. The law has been in force since its publication last April and provides as follows:

Section 1. Section 4608v of the statutes is amended to read: Section 4608v. Every person who shall sell or give to any person under the age of sixteen years, a cigar, or tobacco in any form, without the written consent of the parent or guardian of such minor, shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than twenty-five dollars for each offense and every person under the age of sixteen years who shall smoke or use cigarettes, cigars, or tobacco on any public road, street, alley or park or other lands used for public purposes or in any public place of business or amusement, except when in the company of a parent or guardian, shall be punished by a fine of not more than ten dollars or by imprisonment for not exceeding thirty days.

MUNICIPAL COUNCIL TO BEAUTIFY CITY URGED BY SPEAKER

Prof. Henry Turner Bailey in Address Last Evening Tells of Importance of Improvement Campaigns.

Will Janesville citizens profit by the lecture of Henry Turner Bailey, given last night at the high school before an audience of over two hundred people, and establish a municipal council for the purpose of beautifying the city? Mr. Bailey's address proved of vital interest to this city and some action is expected to be taken to carry out some of the improvement measures.

After his introduction by Prof. H. C. Buell, Mr. Bailey explained that the settlers of this country in their mad rush for existence had no time to make appearance count and during the rapid growth of the nation practically nothing had been done to preserve the natural beauty that nature had so richly provided. The first at-tempt to "guard against the danger, according to the speaker, was a fall-use and it was not until the world's fair at Chicago that Americans realized the problem in a true light and made way for national parks that were to become the pride of American citizens.

Janesville has wonderful possibilities for a most beautiful city," declared Mr. Bailey, "with a beautiful river and advantageous location among hills and valleys, the natural essentials. The matter of making a city a pride is not a petty theory, but a practical fact that has been proved by many of the more progressive cities of the country. The first step in making this a success is to find a capable leader and securing for him the backing of an organization that is representative of the city. I would suggest that in this city, one person be picked from every class and edge, for the formation of the municipal council, giving weight to that body in bringing about a better appearing municipality by the arousing of public sentiment.

"Home clean-ups are of vital importance, and the lesson of beautification, which is an important item in the work. The one step that is necessary with the improvement work is the education of the children to secure their co-operation, and while they are only children at the present time, they will rule the city within a few years. Now is the time to prepare for the future. The great problem is working and not to be worked. A comprehensive plan for the entire population should be given the widest publicity and it should be the aim of improvement committee to interest citizens in every walk of life and make the problem a civic affair. Constant education is necessary as too many reform movements are lost after a short noisy existence, and when the results begin to come forth, the question is practically settled," said Mr. Bailey in part.

The lecture was illustrated with stereopticon views, the majority of which were taken in New England and foreign nations where time and money has been spent in making beauty a matter of civic and national pride. "Natural beauty," said Mr. Bailey, "is the world's finest art, and the Americans are slowly learning that it is of great importance to the country."

The matter of the approach to a city, he declared, was a recommendation for the town and it is a fatal mistake to allow ugly bill boards to hide nature's work for the first impression is a lasting one to the stranger. Railroad station examples were given lengthy attention by the speaker. The modern styles of architecture, building of fountains and monuments were thoroughly explained with suggestions for improvement.

Mr. Bailey closed his address with the prophecy that while every nation had become famous for some particular beauty, the United States would gain her standing for beautiful homes.

Before the lecture the Janesville high school orchestra, led by Miss Emily Rowell, gave selections that were greatly appreciated by the audience members exhibiting unusual talent for a high school organization.

DOUBLE MARRIAGE PERFORMED TODAY

The Misses Gertrude and Laura Schlatter Become Brides at Early Hour This Morning.

A double wedding took place this morning, in which the Misses Gertrude and Laura Schlatter, both of this city, were united in marriage to Messrs. Milton K. Cook of this city and Joseph Gibbons of Racine. Miss Laura Schlatter was married first to Mr. Gibbons at the St. Mary's church at seven-thirty, followed by the marriage of Miss Gertrude Schlatter to Mr. Cook, which took place at the church rectory. Father Gebel performed both ceremonies.

Miss Agnes Graber of Chicago acted as bridesmaid at the first wedding, with Josh Schlatter, brother of the bride as best man. After the first wedding was over, Mr. and Mrs. Gibbons in turn acted as bridesmaid and best man at the second wedding.

Immediately following the two weddings, the happy couples went to the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Anna V. Schlatter, on Madison street, where a delightful breakfast was served.

The brides were formerly employed at the Pen Company's office. Both grooms are railroad men, Mr. Cook being a fireman on the St. Paul road in this city, having acted in that capacity for many years.

Mr. Gibbons is an engineer, and Mr. Cook is a machanic. Both couples departed on their wedding trips on morning trains. It is not known where they were going. Mr. and Mrs. Gibbons will make their home in Racine, while Mr. and Mrs. Cook will be at home in the Knudson Flats on North High street within a few weeks.

Out of town guests at the weddings were: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gibbons, parents of Mr. Gibbons; Mrs. Floyd Turnbull and daughter, Helen; and Mr. and Mrs. Edmunds and daughter, Jeanette, all of Racine. Point: Charles Cook of Milwaukee, father of M. F. Cook.

NEW DELIVERY WAGON ON PARCEL POST RUN

New Addition for Handling Mails Proves a Benefit—Busy Days Begin at Postoffice.

A new parcels post wagon has been placed on service at the local postoffice for the purpose of delivering all parcel post articles throughout the city, thus saving the mail carriers considerable time and effort when making their usual runs. The wagon has been on the run every day for the past week, which goes to show that its addition to the department has proven a benefit in every way.

This wagon has no steady man on it. Substitute carriers will run it for the purpose of delivering all parcel post articles throughout the city, thus saving the mail carriers considerable time and effort when making their usual runs. The wagon has been on the run every day for the past week, which goes to show that its addition to the department has proven a benefit in every way.

The mails are beginning to increase, and Postmaster Valentine looks for the largest year in the history of the local department. Today's mail showed a substantial gain over that of a week ago, and a constant increase is looked and being prepared for.

One of the few publications issued for extended circulation by the Brothers of the Book is entitled the Links of Ancient Rome. GROUND TO DEATH BY EARLY MORNING TRAIN NEAR AFTON DEPOT

Laurence Ward Leaves Merry Makers and Evidently Wanders Down Track to Death.

Laurence Ward, aged thirty, employed by Charles Wells of Footville, who was a Janesville visitor for some hours last evening and later attended a dance at Afton, was found dead beside the Northwestern tracks ten rods south of the Afton depot early this morning. His body, horribly mangled, was discovered by William Griffin about six-thirty, as he was walking down the tracks to work. He hurriedly notified the authorities and the corpse was removed to the Afton station waiting room.

Ward, with two companions, came to Janesville from Footville last evening and were about the city for some time before going to Afton, where a dance was to be held. They enjoyed themselves at the dance and later went to the Afton depot to wait for a morning train to return home. When Ward's body was found his two companions were inside the depot, still showing the effects of their night's "gayety" and were unable to state when their dead companion left them. Evidently he had walked down the track into the way of the early morning train and paper train, which was due there about six o'clock, and was ground under the wheels. His two overcoats were still in the waiting room and his reason for leaving his companions is not known. The trio enjoyed themselves while in the city and continued their spree at Afton during the dance.

Ward is a native of Spring Valley township and has two sisters and three brothers living there. They have been notified as well as relatives in Footville.

J. C. Putnam.

Funeral services for the late J. C. Putnam, who died Saturday at Marshalltown, Iowa, were held Tuesday afternoon from his son's home in Bradford, at one-thirty. Rev. O'Neill officiated. Interment was held at the Emerald Grove cemetery. The pallbearers were: Robert More, Earl Wetmore, Samuel Locke, William and James Duthie.

J. C. Putnam was born at Newbury, Vermont, March 23, 1827, and came to Wisconsin with his parents in June, 1847, and settled on a farm in the town of Bradford, Rock county, where he lived for sixty-one years. On October 16, 1890, he was married to Sarah Anna R. Chamberlain. To them were born five children. Mr. Putnam died in the city of Marshalltown, Iowa, at the residence of his son, Mr. J. C. Putnam, who resides on the homestead at Bradford.

Mrs. Putnam died March 14, 1873. He again married on May 9, 1874, to Mrs. Elizabeth Skuse, a widow with three children—James Skuse of Liscomb, Iowa; Miss Lillian Skuse of Beloit, Wis.; and Mrs. W. H. Barlow of Hartford, Wisconsin, who has been in this city during her mother's illness. Mrs. Putnam was living with five years prior to his death.

F. W. Christman. The remains of F. W. Christman, a former resident of this city, arrived from Seattle, Washington, today and were taken to the home of his father, H. A. Christman, near Beloit. Funeral services will be conducted from the father's home Friday afternoon at one o'clock and burial will be at the Clinton cemetery.

Mrs. August W. Drafa. Death came to Mrs. August Drafa, after a week's illness, at the Mercy hospital and the shadow came when an operation failed to stem the tide of the grim reaper, at eight o'clock this morning. Her death casts a deep sorrow upon her family and wide circle of friends as she was a devoted Christian and had lived a worthy life. Mrs. Drafa was a member of the Christian church of this city and an earnest worker.

Mrs. Drafa was fifty-one years of age at the time of her death and leaves to mourn her loss, a loving husband, four daughters, Mrs. Fern Stendel of Hartford, Wisconsin, who has been in this city during her mother's illness, Mrs. Florence and Jessie of Janesville. One sister, Mrs. L. A. Peckham of Thompson, Iowa, also survives the deceased.

Funeral services will be held at the home, 529 Fifth avenue at one o'clock.

Wonderful Production, Staged With Artistic and Historic Exactness, to Be Seen at Myers Theater.

It is safe to say that Janesville residents never had the opportunity of witnessing a motion picture production of greater beauty, staged more grandly, with as capable actors, presenting scenes of Imperial Rome, with artistic and historic exactness, and telling as thrilling and interesting a story as the "Quo Vadis" production at the Myers theatre. The engagement opened last evening and will continue through Saturday with matinees.

For over two hours the audience was held in rapt attention while the wonderful pictures revealed the corruption, cruelty, vanity and worldly wickedness of Nero and his court; they revealed the dramatic story of the love of Lygia, the beautiful Christian girl held as a hostage, and Vinitius, the young Roman patrician, who was finally converted to the Christian faith; they revealed the intimate pictures of their haunts and meeting places of the period; they revealed the monumental cruelty of the Romans in their treatment of the Christians, including the burning of Rome, a spectacle fearfully vivid.

The cast of the production is truly great. The part of Nero is taken with true comprehension of the unparalleled vanity, weakness, verging on imbecility, the cowardly spirit, the fiendish cruelty, the faithlessness, of that last of the Caesars. The parts of Petronius and Vinitius, the two patricians, friends of Nero, who became sponsors of the Christian cause are taken by able artists. The role of Lygia, the beautiful Christian girl, is well acted, while the role of Ursus, the huge giant whose devotion to his mistress, Lygia, amounts to worship, is a wonderful piece of acting.

Great scenes there are a plenty in the production. The burning of Rome is an appalling spectacle and is shown on the canvass in all vividness. The torture of the Christians thrown to the lions, the gladiatorial combats, the chariot races and games, the banquet of Nero with all their disgusting revelry, are among the scenes that are shown with true appreciation of historic fact. The staging of the production is superb, and carries one back to the days of Rome's most gorgeous display. One lives for a short time with Vinitius and Lygia and feels with them the fear and disgust and the horror which filled that brief reign of Nero marking the empire's first tottering toward decline.

If one is interested in history, in drama or wonderful acting, if one cares for beautiful pictures and architecture, or if you like to be stirred by a beautiful heart-thrilling story, you certainly can't afford to miss "Quo Vadis."

Will Ed Walsh ever come back? The past season was the first in many years that his name was not linked with Matty and Walter Johnson's as one of the few really great. Walsh kept the White Sox in the running for many seasons and at times with little help from his confederates. He has made a record with the Chicago American outfit that Matty or Johnson might well envy and would have difficulty in equalling should they be in the game for many seasons to come. At one time or another Ed Walsh has thought that he would profit by a change and do better work if he were pitching elsewhere than for the Sox. He feared that he was getting into a rut. And it looks as though there were something in it. His showing this past season has been well below his performances of other years. Late rumors, however, declare that next year the spitball wizard will be back in his old-time shape. Bone-setter Reese has said that when Ed reports for work next spring he will be as good as ever. It would be a wonderful thing for the White Sox and for the game in general if Walsh should ever be able to come back.

There are players who have refused to keep back from the plate and pitchers, fretting at this, have "beaten" them purposely, making them "plate shy." And a batter once "plate shy" is never apt to be clouting at 300. Ball players say that Roger Bresnahan was one of the few batters who could never be backed away from the plate. Roger was "beaten" often perhaps than any other man in the game. He would spend several days in the accident ward after having been rapped on the dome by a fast one and then would come back and crowd the plate as much as ever. Pitchers couldn't get his name. "Kid" Elberfeld was another batter who could never be made to stand back. Bean him as they would, the Kid would come back for more and annoy the pitchers to desperation. Frank Chance, the peerless one, is said to have lost his gait at the bat through having been-beaten so often. Not that his batting dropped off to a very great extent, but pitchers found that they could keep him away from the plate by shooting high snaky ones directly at his head.

Speaking of coming back brings to mind the remarkable work of Jake Daubert who won the Chalmers car offered the National league player proving most valuable to his team. In 1907 he was considered a dud by Cleveland and they let him go. Brooklyn grabbing him via the draft route at the cost of about $1,000. His first season in the National league was not a very brilliant one at the bat, but the season following in 1911 he hit at .307; the next year at .308. This past season he worked his average to .270. He bids fair to become the batting king of the National league. He made only a dozen errors the past season and never made more than one in any game. And five seasons ago he was rated as a lemon by the Naps.

Arthur Duffy, the ex-springing champ, says that the deal of kicking generally done by Americans in connection with the Olympic games and the plans and preparations for them is beginning to make our cousins of the continent somewhat peeved-like with us. And we have been frothing and heeling and hitting, says Duffy. When the big contests were held in London in 1908 we complained and objected continually at the manner in which the Brits ran things and tried to tell them the way it should be done. The result of which was a decided coolness between England and American in sports thereafter. Last summer at Stockholm there was kicking about the darts and they had to be changed to suit us. Americans. And at present it begins to look as if there would be more complaints from America on the arrangements for the games at Berlin in 1916. "Of course, being Americans," says Duffy, "we're going to see that we get all that's coming to us. But the continual kicking over most every little matter that is brought up doesn't go very far in arousing a warm regard for the American standard of athletics abroad. You see 'er, Art?"

AT THE SOURCE.

That the new income tax is not working out to the satisfaction of the framers of this measure is certain, and the Wall Street Journal takes up the question of the idea of collection at the source in the following manner. Of course the law has only been in effect since November 1st, but already its defects are being discovered quickly by those who seek for them, according to an Eastern exchange.

"An enormous burden has been thrown on banks and bankers and on the investment community by this method of collecting the tax. The statement by a Chicago bond dealer that Chicago banks in the past fortnight have spent $2,000 to collect barely $1,000 of tax, does not appear overdrawn. There are an enormous number of instances—literally millions—where, to collect the tax on a single coupon for $20, $25 or $30, a separate certificate must be made out by the owner, a separate record kept by the bank or other collecting agent, and a separate letter of advice that collection has been made. For a tax amounting to 20, 25 or 30 cents, it is no exaggeration to say that the cost of collection at the source amounts in stationery, postage, clerical labor and time of principals to anywhere from three to ten times this sum, or even more."

"Had congress seen fit to accept the recommendation that, instead of collection at the source, there be substituted the principle of 'information at the source,' the greater part of this expense, waste and annoyance could have been avoided. A mere declaration by the holder as to his ownership of the security might have been required, under penalty of a 1 per cent deduction for tax if not furnished. This could have been very simple and in such form that any clerk could attend to all details without making inquiry of anyone. The owner would simply affix his signature."

"Under this plan coupons would be accepted as deposits by banks, as heretofore, with no deduction, fuss or worry. The certificates of ownership would find their way in due course to the collector of internal revenue, whose force could classify them as now. Then the government would have a complete record, so far as income from common interest is concerned, from which it could deal direct with the individual. Ninety per cent of the extra labor thrown on banks would be eliminated, with a corresponding reduction in irritation. The question of exemption would trouble no one but the government and the individual."

"Why the framers of this measure should have failed to adopt so sound a suggestion, it is difficult to see. Through the corporation income tax and its agents throughout the country it had an excellent opportunity to check up the bulk of the bonded debt of the country's corporations. This plan might not be as practicable for some other classes of securities. But if it had been applied to bond interest alone the advantage would have been almost incalculable. As it is, the scheme is a colossal and costly blunder."

A BRAND NEW ONE.

The editor of the Port Washington Star offers to the reformers at Madison a brand new idea which he will give them free of charge and save the usual expense of seeking means to organize a new and unique method of spending the state's cash for the purpose of political organizations. The idea is one which might well be taken up seriously by the reformers seeking new commissions and new commissioners as they have apparently exhausted all the other Tom fool ideas that they have heard of in the last session of the legislature. The suggestion takes the following form:

"Now that all the traveling professors of the University of Wisconsin's research department have returned from their peregrinations unto the uttermost parts of the earth in search of tom-fool laws not yet upon the statute books of this great commonwealth—have returned from their annual and expensive outings at the expense of the taxpayers—the editor of the Star, who was among the stay-at-homes facing a payroll in these piping times of wealth, begs leave to modestly remark that he has conceived, invented, copyrighted and will now disclose a brand new and additional commission for the next progress-if legislature to burden the taxpayers with in the interests of 'God's patient poor' politicians, and will assign his copyright to Prof. McCarthy of the legislative grinding mill association at Madison, and here it is:

"Establish a chief coal inspector as a companion piece in astute legislation to accompany the oil inspection department and provide for five thousand oleaginous deputies with capabilities for sneering political bunk broadcast among the people while officially ascertaining the D. T. U.'s in the multitudinous coal bins of God's patient poor at so much per ton.

"Why, the useless oil inspectors wouldn't be in it for a holy minute with the coal inspectors and it isn't half as important to the dear people to have official knowledge of the fact that gasoline is explosive as it is that they should have official and scientifically inscribed knowledge of the self-evident fact that coal embodies a specific and easily ascertained amount of heat units."

The Bull Moose cigarette has appeared on the market. Evidently so named because of its noxious odor and proclivity for smoking and smouldering long after it should have gone out. It is also evidently dangerous to leave lying around as it might cause most disastrous conflagrations similar to that of November, 1912.

Probably everybody has noticed the promptness and carefulness with which the Honorable Bill Sulzer has filed his account of the receipts and expenditures of his assembly campaign.

Just because efficiency is now demanded for government appointments is no reason why applicants shouldn't bring to bear all the influence necessary to prove it.

On the Spur of the Moment

Grandma's Bonnet.
Grandma used to wear a bonnet With but very little on it; Not a single peacock feather Flopped or fluttered in the weather. Five-foot brims were not in order, Nor the hanging curtain bonnets, Ostrich, flamingoes, enhaired parrots, Turkeys, rutabagas, carrots, Grape and apple imitations Were not used as decorations. Grandma's hat did not disguise her, You could always recognize her, So we dedicate this sonnet To the modest little bonnet.

Each succeeding generation Makes us love grandma's creation, Women's hats keep growing bigger And they cut more of a flogger. Loved one's faces, all concealing, Not an eye or nose revealing. Man can't pick his wife or cousin In the street out of a dozen. He is very oft mistaken And his nerves are badly shaken When he elevates his lady To some strange offended lady And she glares until to him it Seems to be about the limit. Wife's new hat has too much on it. Ah, for that old grandma bonnet.

Hip Boots for the Cow.
A farmer living in Michigan has baited the state sanitary inspector and the milk and food inspector. The farmer has been selling milk containing thirty per cent water. He claims that the cow stands for hours in the water up to her knees, and by an interesting and most remarkable case of capillary attraction, the water absorbed into the cow's system in due course of time becomes a portion of the milk. The milk inspector will send a plumber out to see what the matter with the cow and perhaps compel her cowship to wear hip rubber boots.

Uncle Abner.
Men spring from monkeys all right, but the ones that wear blue hats with the bow behind don't spring very far. I see the fellow that invented cold storage is dead, but he never will be dead as long as some of his cold storage chickens have been.

Any male fellow who will go to a political banquet without taking a ham sandwich in his pocket ain't got sense enough to deserve the ballot.

There is never much use in trying to scrape acquaintance with a fellow who has got a new automobile. The fellow isn't a quick lurch in this country who has got enough strength of mind to begin eating a piece of pie anywhere but at the small end.

If there was a law agin' goin' to church, everybody would want to be there an hour and a half before the service started and there wouldn't be standing room.

One of the freaks of human nature is the fact that the crowd is always disappointed when the firemen get the blaze under control before it has done any damage.

There is nobody so unhappy as the fellow who spends his time tryin' to figure out the future.

It begins to look as though corn-cob pipes are not going to go out of style very soon.

As long as the factories continue to make red neckties somebody will wear 'em.

The Dough.
Where goes, where goes the dough? Have you got the heart to ask it With the prices soaring so? We will tell you pretty sudden, If you really like to know. It goes for coal and gas and rent, Until the salary is spent. And father can't dig up a cent— It's blow, blow, blow. Where goes, where goes the dough? It goes for milk and porridge. That will make the kids grow. If you've any cause to doubt it, Ask the old man. He will know.

Afterthoughts.
What the Democratic office seekers in Washington want is pie like Cleveland used to make. Diplomats are silent on the Mexican situation. Any diplomat who would happen to refuse to be silent would lose his own situation. The coward who refuses to go to the dentist shouts with glee as he reads that the Mexicans killed a man for the gold in his teeth.

Vice President Marshall advises young men to marry before they are thirty, but over there, in the law office of the print shop, it will be "30" for most of them.

Daniel Frohman presents

"HIS NEIGHBOR'S WIFE"

It is an honor exceeded only by a surpassing degree of pleasure to announce the presentation of Lillie Langtry, the distinguished emotional actress, and the famous favorite of two continents, in a thrilling motion picture entitled, "HIS NEIGHBOR'S WIFE." Lillie Langtry's individuality and vital dramatic force are to wit and widely known to require an extended description. "His Neighbor's Wife" will go down in history as one of Mrs. Langtry's greatest characterizations, and will become a tradition in the world of creative art.

The gripping story teems with intense suspense and appeal, and is indicated without exaggeration or histrionic hysterics. The plot may be considered bold, even daring, but it conveys a serious message and possesses an effective moral. The theme is as old as the world, but as new as today. It reaches the heights and depths of humanity. It is a slice of life.

Lillie Langtry's art makes the film preach a powerful sermon!

IS SUGAR FACTORY TO BE SHUT DOWN?

REPORTED THAT CAPTAIN DAVIDSON HAS GIVEN ORDERS TO THIS EFFECT.

LOSS TO THE FARMERS

First Effects of the Democratic Tariff Measure to Strike Home to the Residents of This Section.

One of the first real effects of the democratic tariff measure recently passed by congress, to strike the Wisconsin farmers, will be the closing down of the Rock County Sugar Company's factory at this city. It is understood that orders have been received by the management from Captain James Davidson, the owner, to close down the factory permanently as soon as the present run of sugar is through, the machinery to be put in such shape that it will not rust or be injured by lack of use.

These orders come direct from the owner, who moved the factory here ten years ago from Canada. Captain Davidson's story is evident in the record with similar moves of other beet sugar factory owners, particularly those of Michigan, he being interested in factories in that state. This is the first time that the decision of the owners of various factory owners in a dozen middle western and western states, representing a hundred millions capital invested, who met in Chicago recently.

The establishment in Janesville the Rock County Sugar Company has handled approximately 450,000 tons of beets, which sliced up into some 55,000,000 pounds of sugar and were paid for in the record of six dollars per ton or an aggregate of $2,700,000 to the growers who have been located all over southern Wisconsin and northern Illinois.

Aside from the money paid to the growers, the factory has kept on an average of two hundred men employed the year round, at the factory itself and in the beet fields. During the slicing season it has had a force which varied from 225 to 425 men per day for a period of four months, paying good wages at a period of the year when work was scarce and labor plenty.

This vast sugar factory handled between five thousand and six thousand acres of beets, paying a trifle better than six dollars per ton. The present run started early in October and will continue up to about the middle of January when the factory will be closed down permanently.

The loss to the grower of the steady income will mean a decided cutting in the profits of the grower of the state. Beets and tobacco have been the two best paying crops for ten years past and it will be hard to replace the farm work to conform with the new condition.

This is the first real effect of the tariff measure which makes sugar importation free after 1915 and Captain Davidson's action has merely been a presentiment of future conditions when beet sugar will have to compete with cane sugar grown in the tropics and handled by cheap labor.

HELD FOR PASSING COUNTERFEIT MONEY

Mary Vogelsburg Arraigned in Milwaukee for Violation of Federal Law.

Mary Vogelsburg, alias Marie Rowe, of Janesville, who was arrested by the Milwaukee authorities, appeared before the Milwaukee court this afternoon to answer to a charge of attempting to pass counterfeit money. The offense is most serious and if found guilty she will probably be sentenced in the United States prison at Port Leavenworth.

According to word received by the Janesville police, the girl tried to pass a counterfeit five dollar bill upon a Milwaukee fruit dealer and was arrested. Miss Vogelsburg claims that her companion, who left her in Milwaukee, gave her the bill and she had no knowledge of its origin.

Miss Vogelsburg's mother, who resides on West Milwaukee street, was notified of the trial by the Janesville police and will appear before the court to intercede for her daughter.

SEEK TO HOLD CITY AS SOLE DEFENDANT IN BRIDGE TANGLES

Bridge Companies Serve Papers on City in Attempt to Shift Infringement of Patent Suits.

In an attempt to shift the responsibility in the infringement of patent action brought against them by David H. Luten of Indianapolis, Ind., the Gould Construction Company and the Milwaukee street bridge company, which is in contract with the city of Janesville to build the Milwaukee street bridge over the Rock river, has served papers on the city demanding that the city undertake the defense of the action at its own expense. The demand to defend has been served by the firm of Richmond, Jackson and Swanson of Madison and P. S. Nolan of this city, attorneys for the construction company, the case having been instituted in the district court of the United States for the western district of Wisconsin.

The same sort of a demand has been served on the city by W. C. Kiernan and Company, which is engaged in building the concrete bridge over Spring Brook, and the bridge is a defendant in an action brought by Luten.

The grounds for the demands in both cases are based on the fact that the bridge companies are following plans and specifications made by the city of Janesville in the case of the Milwaukee street bridge and the demand sets forth as follows:

"That the bridge under process of construction, is being constructed under plans and specifications made by the city of Janesville, and that if the construction of said bridge infringes any of the letters patent described in the complaint, the infringement is due to the city and the defendant demands that the city of Janesville at its own expense, undertake and make defense of said action, and save the defendant harmless from all judgments, costs, expenses and disbursements growing out of said action."

No intimation has been given as yet in regard to the city's attitude in the matter. City Attorney W. H. Donohue was in Madison yesterday on business relatives to the case.

In his complaint against the Gould company, Mr. Luten sets forth the contention that he holds several patents on improvements in bridges on concrete, including arches, girders and trusses of the same, and that the Gould company, has, within the western district of Wisconsin and elsewhere, infringed the letters patent and the rights of the complainant therein, and more especially in the erection of a reinforced bridge across Rock river on Milwaukee street, Janesville, Wisconsin.

The complainant asks for an injunction and a preliminary injunction pending the suit, restraining the defendant from infringing on the patents and also asks for damages and costs.

The Gould company has secured an extension of twenty days in which to file an answer, and in the meantime the firm's attorneys are making a thorough investigation of the case. It has been found that Luten has instituted a number of suits of this character in different parts of the country. He has brought a number of cases in the federal courts in Iowa and in consequence the state of Iowa has appropriated $10,000 to fight the suits.

It is not considered probable that the work here will be used on with an injunction for the reason that the complainant would be called upon to furnish a "bond."

The construction company is anxious to have the city take up the case and its attorneys are confident that with at least the cooperation of the city in fighting the suit, more satisfactory results can be obtained.

Heart to Heart Talks

By CHARLES N. LURIE

YOUR POCKET NERVE.

"The pocket nerve," says a cynical observer of human nature, "is the most sensitive in the human organism. When it is touched the whole system quivers in agony."

He is right, is he not, concerning some of the folks we know? Afflicted or threatened with a loss of worldly goods, their entire systems are shaken as though by storms of the most agonizing physical affliction.

Their pocket nerves have been wounded.

Touch their nerves of sympathy, of tenderness, of friendship or of love and the response is not so sharp or acute. There are shrinking and pain, of course, but it does not seem so acute as when the pocket nerve is assailed.

We all know the men or women with the theoretical sympathy for the poor and afflicted. "Poor folks!" they cry. "How I sorrow for them!"

But their pocket nerves are not touched. There is no reflex action to send the hand directly and with a strong impulse to the wallet or check book. The button has been pressed, but there is no connection with the human battery, and the bell of active, effective sympathy does not ring.

Touch the pocket nerve in a way to affect their own comfort or well being or wealth and see the different result! There is immediate, strong action toward the strong box. But it hastens with eager, trembling, nervous fingers to close it up, not to open it wide at the call of brotherhood.

We all know the evils of indiscriminate, careless giving without adequate investigation. We all recognize the worthy aims and the practical good of the "charity organization societies," with their trained investigators and their officials, who know real destitution and want from the sham article.

But with all their scientific, careful, effective work there are times when immediate relief for the poor is needed. "He gives twice who gives quickly" is true sometimes.

That is the time when the pocket nerve should be touched and in the right way. It should respond quickly, as a healthy nerve responds in the human organism.

Good Remedy for It.

Mrs. Keepup made it her private and particular business to have whatever her neighbor had, whether it was a question of chickens or diseases, so when Mrs. Gotherne complained to her one day of insomnia Mrs. Keepup was ready for her. "I have it, too, very badly at times," "What do you do for it, Mrs. Keepup?" "Why, I have never found anything that did me any real good, except to go to bed and sleep it off."

About the Human Eye.

Greenish, hazel and spotted eyes are accompanied usually with shrewd, quick, nervous, restless temperaments. According to Professor Hudson, Asiatics with hazel eyes are cunning and weasel-like. Contrary to the popular notion, persons with green eyes are too indifferent in passion to be at all jealous of the opposite sex; they are, however, frequently envious of their own.

WILL OPEN CLASSES BY LAST OF MONTH

Lockers and Bowling Alley Equipment Arrives and Will Be Installed Immediately.

Material for completing the remodeling of the Y. M. C. A. building has arrived and work will be rushed immediately so as to prepare the building for the gymnasium classes which are expected to open by the last of this month.

Two hundred steel lockers have arrived and a force of workmen are busily engaged in placing them in their respective rooms. At least one more day will be required to complete this work after which attention will be given for the equipping of the bowling alleys and finishing of the swimming pools.

Members have been disappointed because of not being able to use the pool at an earlier date as no filter has been placed and Secretary J. C. Kline is refusing to allow the use of the pool until the work was completed. The gym apparatus is expected to arrive daily and by the last of the week, bounding boards for the three basketball courts will be placed in their positions. It is planned to have two courts running crosswise and one the entire length of the floor, affording an excellent court for match games.

Arrangements are being made for a representative basketball five and Director Yordy should be able to develop a winning team from the large number of members. While the team will be handicapped because of no preliminary season the candidates are confident that a good team will be the result.

SOAP ON YOUR HAIR CAUSES DANDRUFF; SCALP GETS DRY, THEN HAIR FALLS OUT.

Girls! Boys! Get a 25 cent bottle and try a "Danderine Hair Cleanse" —Save your hair!

After washing your hair with soap always apply a little Danderine to the scalp to invigorate the hair and prevent dryness. Better still, use soap as sparingly as possible and instead have a "Danderine Hair Cleanse." Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one strand at a time. This will remove dust, dirt and excessive oil. In a few moments you will be amazed, your hair will not only be clean, but it will be wavy, fluffy and abundant, and possess an incomparable softness and lustre.

Besides cleansing and beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff, stimulates the scalp, stops itching and falling hair. Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. It's exhilarating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

Men! Ladies! You can surely have lots of charming hair. Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it.

SAW-BUCK AS CURE FOR DRINK HABIT

Sheriff Whipple is Now Planning on New Method for Employing Prisoners.

Prisoners at the Rock county jail, sentenced under the commitment law, may be forced to saw wood when no work can be found for them outside, as the county rock pile would prove of no financial value to the county or to the dependents of the prisoner.

The matter of supplying a work house for prisoners was left to the decision of Sheriff C. S. Whipple by the county board, and it is his intention to establish a wood pile instead of making those sentenced carry rock for punishment. "If we can find some one that will furnish us wood and will pay a reasonable price for the work, it is probable that this plan will be adopted, as the men are given physical punishment and it will not mean a dead loss to the county," explained Mr. Whipple.

Work has been slack among the farmers for the last week and it has caused considerable trouble to place the large number of men who have been committed to the jail, but with the completion of the tobacco season it is expected that this difficulty will be adjusted.

On Friday morning the trial of Leroy Foreman of Edgerton will be tried before Judge Clark of the Beloit municipal court, for jumping parole under the commitment law. Foreman had been sent by the Edgerton authorities to work in the town of Harmony, and while serving this term was arrested in Beloit for drunkenness. Foreman is liable for a year's term in state prison. This is the second case of prisoners trying to escape their punishment, one man being in Waupun at the present time. District Attorney Stanley Dunwiddie will prosecute the case and Attorney Kiland will be the defending lawyer.

ENGINES ARE USING VARIOUS HEADLAMPS

Danger Involved in Using Large Arc Light...New Methods Being Thought of To Counteract This

Oil flames, acetylene gas flames, incandescent electric lamps and electric arc lamps up the source of light for the moderate day locomotive. To get the full strength of these various lights, and concentrating it into a straight beam, requires two principal methods. The method of using a thick lens in front of the light, has been used to a certain degree. The other method is being successfully used on locomotives today, namely the use of the parabolic reflector.

It is almost utterly impossible to concentrate a powerful oil or gas flame into a small volume. So, where a strong head lamp is used, these sources are eliminated. The arc light is a very powerful light source with a small volume. It produces a dazzling beam, when backed by the proper reflector.

On double track lines, this beam will cover both tracks for perhaps one thousand feet or more ahead. The engineers have found it almost impossible to see the block signals ahead, when these lights are lit. It is also blinding to the engineer, for he claims in many cases, that he could not see the approaching locomotive on the same track if it were but one thousand feet away; even were the arcs lighted on both engines.

There has been a remedy to this of late, and it is thought the arc light can be used, with more success than before, and eliminating all the dangers, which previously existed. The incandescent comes between the flame head lamp and the other extreme. The wire tungsten can be formed into a small spaced lamp of a high candlepower. This light, backed by a good parabolic reflector, will give a beam light of sufficient intensity to give the engineer plenty of time to stop the engine, within a distance of one thousand feet. This light will cover both tracks, when speaking of the double track, without interfering in any way with the block signals, or an approaching locomotive. A locomotive can stop within a radius of from 1,200 to 1,500 feet, when going at the rate of sixty miles an hour, depending also upon the conditions of the roadbed.

The test made by several roads discover that a man dressed in white clothes can be distinguished about one and six-tenths times as far down the track as a man in gray, while the latter can be seen only one and three-tenths times as far as a man in black.

The vast improvement in locomotive headlights within the past few years, and the improvement of the new arc lamp, with its new straight beam, will greatly tend to lessen the dangers on the modern rail.

The Theater

"STOP THIEF."

Kleptomaniacs are the theme of Carlyle Moore's farce "Stop Thief" one of the big shows which Cohen & Harris are offering their admirers this season and which is scheduled for one performance at the Myers Theater Friday, November 23. A kleptomaniac is defined by Webster as a wealthy person of extraordinary absent minded tendencies, and morbid impulses. The mania usually demonstrates its presence by the victim of it being discovered in making a collection of valuable articles that do not belong to him. When a poor man is caught doing the same thing he is pronounced as an ordinary thief. Now in the play "Stop Thief" there are two kleptomaniacs and a real crook. One of them is a millionaire, the other is his prospective son-in-law. The bride-to-be is aware of her father's habit of stealing but is ignorant of the fact that her future husband is so afflicted. The real thief is smuggled into the rich man's home by the house maid, and the fun begins. One valuable article after another disappears, a battalion of police are called in, and they are baffled in the search for the culprit.

"LILLIAN RUSSELL."

John Cort's Feature Festival with its own special orchestra and forty famous artists, headed by the renowned beauty, Lillian Russell, to be seen in this city at Myers Theater, Tuesday, November 25, is called Feature impresario as much as grand opera costs it would be a pity to refer to it as ordinary vaudeville, and Mr. Cort relies on the public to correctly discriminate in estimating its comparative worth with promiscuous vaudeville. The program clearly enlightens the auditor as to the magnitude of the Cort attraction, the names enrolled representing the highest class of artists in their respective lines of work. Miss Russell's company includes every sort of theatrical amusement—tragedy, comedy, drama, pantomime, burlesque, character-acting, singing, dancing, opera, spectacle, music, etc., and in selecting the artists for this varied program Mr. Cort spared neither means or money to secure the premiere of each department. Miss Russell's weekly financial exaction alone amounts to more than the total required to exploit the ordinary first-class dramatic attraction and the combined salaries of the forty artists would more than finance the most magnificent of grand opera programs. Hence, the claim that the Lillian Russell company is the costliest theater amusement in the United States the most financially extravagant dramatic attraction ever brought on tour in America. Miss Russell in her new act, the much-discussed "Mildred Disrobes," in which the fair Lillian does more robbing than disrobing. The so-called disrobing feature is by no means as absurdly sensational as some of the promiscuous newspaper reports would make it appear, the fair one merely robbing and disrobing herself of outer garments such as hats, cloaks, furs,

Mrs. Hilbert Tells of Her Distressing Symptoms During Change of Life and How She Found Relief.

Fleetwood, Pa.—"During the Change of Life I was hardly able to be around at all. I always had a headache and I was so dizzy and nervous that I had no rest at night. The flashes of heat were so bad sometimes that I did not know what to do. "One day a friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it made me a strong well woman. I am very thankful that I followed my friend's advice and I shall recommend it as long as I live. Before I took the Compound I was always sickly and now I have not had medicine from a doctor for years. You may publish my letter."—Mrs. EDWARD E. HILBERT, Fleetwood, Pa.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude, and dizziness, are promptly headed by intelligent women who are approaching the period in life when woman's great change may be expected.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound invigorates and strengthens the female organism and builds up the weakened nervous system. It has carried many women safely through this crisis.

This Home-Made Cough Syrup Will Surprise You

Costs Little, but there is Nothing Better at Any Price. Fully Guaranteed.

Here is a home-made remedy that takes hold of a cough almost instantly, and will usually conquer an ordinary cough in 24 hours. This recipe makes a pint—enough for a whole family. You wouldn't buy as much or as good ready-made cough syrup for $2.50.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with 2 1/2 pints of warm water, and stir 2 minutes. Put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (fifty cents) in a pint bottle, and add the Sugar Syrup. This keeps perfectly and has a pleasant taste—children like it. Braces up the appetite and is slightly laxative, which helps end a cough.

You probably know the medical value of pine in treating bronchial asthma, bronchitis, spasmodic croup and whooping cough. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in gualic acid and other natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this combination.

The prompt results from this inexpensive remedy have made friends for it in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada, which explains why the plan has been imitated often, but never successfully.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. Your druggist has Pinex, or will not let you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

THE MARSHAL

By MARY RAYMOND SHIPMAN ANDREWS
Author of The Perfect Tribute
The Better Treasure, Etc.

And at that the stranger broke it, smiling his faint smile. "Mademoiselle Alixe is severe," he said gently. "No one can doubt the courage of a Marquis Zappi." He faced with a quick movement to Francois, and his look changed. One would not have thought that the controlled cold features could show warmth. "I have to thank you for my life, Monsieur Lebas," he said, and held out his hand. "Monsieur, it is seldom that a prophesy is so quickly fulfilled. They gazed at him, fascinated by a dignity which seemed new.

He went on. "You said a few minutes ago that you should one day do a thing worth while for a Bonaparte. You have done it. You have saved my life.

"Unquestioned, the children stared, reluctant to comprehend something which seemed out of possibility. Francois had crept to his cap and he pulled it off and stood bareheaded. "Monsieur, who are you?" he brought out.

The strange boy's vanishing smile brightened his face a second. "I am Louis Bonaparte," he said quietly. The little court of three stood about the young Prince, silent. And in a moment, in a few sentences, he had told them how, the day before, he had been seized with a hunger for the air of France, which he had not breathed since, as a boy of seven, his mother had escaped to him in Switzerland, over the mountains into the Jura valley.

It was imprudent," he finished the tale calmly. "The government would turn on all its big engines in an uproar to catch one schoolboy, if it was known. But I had to do it." He threw back his head and filled his lungs with a great breath. "The air of France," he whispered in an ecstasy. The romantic spirit of this boy always flashed out as a surprise from beneath his calm self-contained exterior. Then, in his usual quiet tones, he said, "I have fallen into the hands of friends. Mademoiselle Alixe—the pretty name"—and he smiled his evanescent smile—"is almost of my family because of her father. Monsieur the peasant has proved his loyalty with his life, and he turned to the tall Pietro—a Bonaparte is safe with Monsieur the Marquis Zappi."

"I am Pietro," stated the boy shyly. He looked at him, narrowly, and his eyes again. Then "And I am Louis," he flashed back. "It is a good thought. Why not leave out the titles for this afternoon? We are all young, it is summer—it is a holiday. We have an ancient castle, and an adventure to play with—what else have we for titles? We shall never see one another again, it is likely. So, shall we not be Alixe and Pietro and Louis? Four children together for this one day's friendship?" And the others laughed and agreed.

For two hours more they told stories and played games through the soft ruins of the savage old stronghold, as lightly and as carelessly as if there were no wars or intrigues or politics or plots which had been and were to be close to the lives of all of them. Till, as the red round sun fell down behind the mountain of the Rose, Francois's quick eye caught sight of a figure swinging rapidly down the mountain road where the Prince had come.

"But look, Louis," he called from behind the rock where he was preparing, as a robber baron, to swoop down on Prince Louis conveying Alixe as an escaped nun to Pietro's monastery in another corner. "Look, Louis! Some one is coming whom I do not know. It is danger for you?"

And the boy Prince, suddenly grave, shaded his eyes with his hand and gazed up the mountain. Then his face fell and he said, "The adventure is over," he said. "I must go back to the Prince business. It is Monsieur Lebas."

Monsieur Lebas, the tutor, arrived smiling at sixteen, but a playful humor. The boy's mood, however, was tense, was in Rome, and he was responsible: he had been frightened to the verge of madness by the Prince's escapade. It was, in fact, as serious as any one may think, or it might have been. The movements of the Bonapartes were watched at that time by the authorities of France and all other countries as well with a close and a jealousy out of proportion.

Europe having been turned upside down lately by that name, that name was hedged out by barriers as if the combination of letters in itself was a peril to a government. Louis Napoleon at sixteen was twice removed from the headship of the house; the Duke of Reichstadt, son of Napoleon I, the older son of King Louis and Hortense, was with his father in Rome; so that this runaway lad was not the heir to anything, even to the pretensions of a de-throned and exiled family. Yet he was prince of the Bonapartes, and the magic of the name and name of the name was about him. It was a danger to France to have his footsteps on her soil, so the laws decreed; it would mean for him prison and perhaps death if he were captured in France. No wonder poor Monsieur Lebas was frightened almost to extinction.

The playmates were separated swiftly. Monsieur Lebas refused with something like horror the eager suggestion of the children that he and his charge should spend the night at the chateau. The Prince must be gotten off French ground without a moment's delay. Fritz Rickenbach, the steward of Arenenberg, was waiting for them back to Switzerland; it was through Fritz indeed, and a discussion of the Prince with him as to distances and directions, that the distracted tutor had known how to follow his quarry.

So the three-hour's friends were mercilessly torn apart, and the children of the chateau came home in the twilight stirred, excited, awed, with a story for the seigneur, a wandering prince and a crumbling wall of a midsummer afternoon's dream; of a frightened tutor and a quick sharp parting; a story which the seigneur found it hard to believe. He made each one of them retell the tale. Francois finished the last.

"And Louis would have come back with us to the chateau, for he wanted to see the general who had been one of his uncle's family," he said, and Monsieur the Seigneur. But the seigneur Lebas would not hear of it, and Louis must do as he said, he told us. But at the end Louis took each of our hands—and he kissed Alixe's hand—and he said that he would never let us get us or this afternoon in the old chateau of Vicques. And I believe it, my Seigneur, for there is something about him which makes one believe he will remember that Louis."

"Louis!" the general growled in repetition, staring sternly at the slim figure which faced him. "You speak that name very glibly. Do you happen to remember, Francois, that the lad whom you call Louis so easily may one day be Emperor of France?"

CHAPTER XIII
The Promise.
"Mon Dieu!" said the general. It was six years later. At the new chateau not a blade of grass seemed changed. The general stood in the midst of close-cropped millions of blades of grass as he stepped short on the sloping lawn which bordered the white stone steps which led to the sunken garden. At each side of the highest step lifted a carved stone vase, blazoning in the September afternoon with scarlet geraniums and geraniums with vines. At the foot of the steps stood two more vases, and at each side of the gravelled path, ribboned with a long flower-bed, at even intervals of thirty feet, another stately pair of them—the gray stuff of red spilling intoxicating brightness of red flowers. They led the eye down a line till, a hundred yards away, the keep broke into a circle where a sun-dial set on a fantastic stone figure of a satyr marked the center of a grass plot. Massive stone seats held up by carved crouching griffins faced each other across the sun-dial; on one of these, in the sunny stillness of the garden, sat a girl and a young man. Alixe, in her riding-habit, with a feather in her hat, and gauntleted gloves on her hands, was so lovely as to be startling. She looked at the ground, half shy, half laughing, and heat the grass with her riding-habit. Francois was leaning toward her and talking, and the general, coming slowly down the lawn, felt a flood of pride rise in him as he looked at this successful picture of a boy which he had done so much to fashion. The two had been riding together, and Francois appeared, as most men do, at his best in his riding clothes. With that, as the general marched slowly down the velvet slope, unseen by them, he saw them—his girl and his boy, this happy sister and brother—with that brother lifted the sister's hand and, bending over it, kissed it slowly, in a manner unmistakably unbrotherly.

"Mon Dieu!" gasped the general, and turned on his heel and marched back to his library. All that afternoon he stayed shut up in the library. At dinner he was tactful.

"Well then, father," Alixe said at last, after the two had tried every subject in vain to make him talk. "It will be necessary now to buy all the berries that are grown for ten miles around."

"Berries?" growled the general, bewildered.

"Why berries?" ferociously.

Alixe looked up at him innocently. "Isn't it berries which we have for tea?" Or will you eat us, my father, when you have bitten our heads off and torn us to pieces?"

And the general, when he had been betrayed into a laugh, sighed deeply and said to himself, "That boy is a wicked sinful boy, to trouble him."

Francis shook his head thoughtfully. "I can not think of anything," he said, and his eyes met hers truthfully. "But you shall know soon. He is as frank as a child, he can not keep a grievance from the people he loves."

Which was a true judgment, for the next morning the general sent for Francois to come to him in the library. A letter had been brought a short time before and was lying open on the table by his hand.

"Francois," began the general in his deep abrupt tones, "I am in trouble. Will you help me?"

"Yes, my Seigneur," said Francois quickly.

"It means a sacrifice to yourself?"

"Yes, my Seigneur," Francois answered.

"We shall see." The general's strong lips were set and he said nothing for a moment, but gazed thoughtfully at the letter which lay under his big outspread fingers. At length, "You remember Pietro's father, the Marquis Zappi?" he demanded.

"Surely, my Seigneur."

"You remember the story I once told you, how he saved my life in Russia?"

"I have never forgotten it."

"You realize that he was dearer to me than any man on earth?"

"He was always beloved it so," said Francois.

"Good," growled the general. "You will bear that in mind. I wish to tell you now of an arrangement—a hope which the Marquis Zappi and I had formed together. It was to be the crown of our friendship and its perpetuation; it was to have been our happiness together; it would be—it will be, if all goes well, the happiest thing which could come to my wife, now that he is gone. Would you break that hope and take that happiness from me?"

Francis, startled, caught a quick breath. "My Seigneur! You should not ask. You know, I would give my own happiness for yours."

The general glared at him, frowning. "We shall see," he said again, and then—suddenly as a shot from a cannon—Does Alixe go you, Francois?"

There was no mistaking what he meant, and Francois did not evade it. A flame of scarlet crept in a swift diagonal across the warm brown of his boyish cheeks, but his clear eyes met the general's searching gaze frankly. He hesitated a moment.

"I think not, my Seigneur," he answered in a low voice.

The general drew in an enormous sigh of relief. "Thank God," he said (extremely, and then put out his hand and laid hold of Francois's strong lean fingers. "My Francois, you are dear as my own son; you know it. You are next to Alixe—before Pietro—ah, yes, much better. I am sure, I will understand it is not from any lack of affection that I put him before you in this."

Francis, high-strung, deeply stirred, felt his hand rob suddenly in the general's grasp. "I am sure, I will understand it is not from any lack of affection that I put him before you in this."

"I am hurting you," the deep voice said—and only one or two people in the world had heard that voice so full of tenderness. "I am hurting my son, the lad whom you call Louis so easily may one day be Emperor of France?"

Dinner Stories

Dinner store The tourist was strolling along by the side of the brook when he came across a very dejected-looking countryman sitting on the bank. "Caught any fish today?" he asked. "No, sir," replied the man glumly. "The fishing must be pretty poor." "I expect it is," "You haven't caught any fish at all?" "Not one." "That seems strange," remarked the tourist.

"It does," replied the man sadly. "Can you think of any reason why you haven't caught any fish?" inquired the tourist.

"Well," replied the other, "the only reason I can think of is that I haven't been fishing today."

A young Lancashire mill worker had a mental relapse, which resulted in his being sent to the county asylum.

After he had been there a few weeks he was visited by one of his fellow workers, who came across him in the grounds.

"Halloa, Benny!" said the visitor. "How's that gettin' on?"

"Oh, Ah'm goin' on first rate, thank ye," answered the afflicted one, "I'm very glad to hear it, lad," said the visitor, pleasantly. "Suppose you'll be comin' back to work soon—eh?"

"Wot?" exclaimed Ben, while a look of great surprise spread over his countenance. "I leave a big house and a grand garden like what I come back to work! Mon, dost tha think Ah'm wrang in my head?"

Heard About the "XV." Furniture. In the window of one of the large furniture stores last week was exhibited a magnificent Louis XV. bedroom set. Two women stopped and looked at it admiringly and one of them—she may have been Mrs. Wood B. Highbrow—exclaimed: "Oh, there is some of that 'ex-ve' furniture I've read so much about!"—Kansas City Star.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Nov. 20, 1873.—Tom Thumb: Seldom have we seen the streets more crowded than they were on Saturday afternoon. A stranger seeing so many people gazing down Main street would have thought they were awaiting the approach of the Duke of Edinburgh or some other royal personage. Instead of a public performance, however, the little General Commodore Nitt, and the ladies descend and take their places in the miniature barouche and illustrious strangers were forced to crowd their way through crowds waiting at the stage door. The hall at both the afternoon and evening performances was crowded to its capacity and scores of people were forced to stand to have a look at Tom Thumb and party in their comic antics.

Killed in Mill: Noah Davenport, proprietor of the mill on Bad Fish creek in the Town of Porter met with a horrible death on Wednesday night. All that is known of the accident is that mutilated fragments of his body were found in the mill gearing this morning, he having been alone in the mill over night as it has been the habit to keep their establishment running continuously during the busy season. His left arm was badly mangled, his left legs severed and crushed to a bloody mass and other portions were ground to a powder by the gearing of the power wheel. It would seem from the appearance of the remains that one of his arms was caught in the gears and he was drawn upward until his legs caught in the lower gearing and his body crushed by the revolving wheels. Mr. Davenport was about forty-five years of age and leaves a wife and seven children. His horrible death has caused a sensation of keener sorrow in the quiet neighborhood where he has so many years resided and acquired such a wide circle of friends.

Wife's Laundry finds a ladies' dainty name written across a gentleman's shirt bosom with pencil in delicate characters, we figure that it is time that that certain young lady should change her name.
